FIRST OF SEPTEMBER EDITION.

The edition of the LEDGER for Thursday, September first, will be greatly enlarged, perhaps to double the present size, in order to make room for an annual statement of the business of Memphis and for such articles and reviews as may be pertinent to the opening of the business season. No pains will be spared to make this a complete and interesting number to our readers at home and abroad. It will be our endeavor to set forth the progress, prospects and material interests of Memphis and surrounding country in their true light. Those who may avail themselves of this particular issue to announce their business may be assured that it will reach the entire reading public connected commercially and socially with Memphis. The first of September will also be an anniversary of the establishment of the LEDGER, the first number of which appeared Sept. 1st, 1865. Ever since that it has been intimately identified with the interests and struggles that have most concerned the city and the Mississippi Valley. The success of this paper is the result of an earnest purpose to serve the public and to deserve success. It will afford us, therefore, more than ordinary pleasure to be able to make a handsome showing at the opening of the business season of 1881.

The President was seriously worse yesterday, though to-day's bulletins assume a forced cheerfulness. He rested badly Saturday night and yesterday, was vomiting and could not retain food. Secretary Blaine telegraphed to Minister Lowell that his general condition was not encouraging. The swelling in his throat, it seems, is giving great trouble; his mind has been wandering and the doctors do not deny that he is in a very critical condition. He seems to have been steadily losing ground for several weeks. The end seems very near.

The plausible old rascal who first engaged a young lady as governess, then married her in Richmond, got her away from home and deserted her, has been well advertised. Nearly every paper in the country published the story within the last month or two, and many of them moralized upon it and delivered a lecture to girls upon the great risk there is in marrying a stranger who has nothing to recommend him but a good appearance and letters of indorsement. Any scamp may be provided with some or all of these qualifications. The trouble is that such advice is never at hand or thought of at the right time, and even if offered would generally be rejected as a piece of old fogeyism or impertinence. No young lady is apt to take such advice kindly after her mind is once made up. The press may publish such betrayals by unprincipled adventurers day after day and week after week, but it utterly fails to make an impression that lasts until most needed. Yet it must be admitted that girls who enter into such foolish and unfortunate alliances are often less to blame than their relatives and natural protectors. In this instance the friends of the young lady in Richmond gave their hearty consent to the marriage with a supposed wealthy widower from the West. His credentials consisted entirely of letters which he forged himself, using the names of imaginary persons. He had the audacity to settle $30,000 on her and had the papers regularly drawn up in Richmond. This was a grand thing for a girl who was to have been a governess. But Mr. Marvin, as he was known there, succeeded through his new made friends in negotiating a draft for $750 and also borrowed $100 from a member of the family. This was what he was after. In a few days the girl was deserted among strangers and had to return home in great humiliation. The disgrace, if such it is, ought to fall upon the relatives, who approved of the hasty marriage with a stranger. It turns out now that he is a bigamist by profession. Pinkerton's detectives have tracked him up and arrested him. He will be carried back to Richmond to answer charges of forgery, bigamy and obtaining money under false pretenses. His operations have been quite extensive in various parts of the country. He has a home and a wife and daughter at New Haven, lived a secluded life there and was often away. No one knew what he followed, but he always seemed to have plenty of money. He has been playing on the credulous side of human nature, a vulture preying upon virtue and innocence. Passing for a man of wealth and education he easily ingratiated himself in the confidence of good families, and it is already ascertained that he has married no less than nine wives, and made money out of all of them. Some of them could have had him punished, but refrained from doing so from motives of delicacy and mortification. Such a moral monster's career should be stopped; the punishment he deserves may be something not known to the Virginia code, but it should be made effective if there is any law for it.

Ancient Order United Workman.

Nashville Banner, 20.
There is more interest manifested in this Order in Tennessee at present than for several years past. There are lodges in Nashville who are receiving each week from four to six new members. During last year the enormous sum of $1,305,887.50 was paid to widows and orphans by this organization. This is indeed a vast charitable fund. There are more re-instatements now than ever before, which is owing to the new law and amendments adopted at a recent meeting of the Supreme Lodge, which are as follows:

Resolved, that until July 1st, 1882, and no longer, members suspended for non-payment of assessments may by a vote of two-thirds of the members present at a stated meeting of their subordinate lodge be re-instated by paying a sum equal to the amount charged by such subordinate lodge for conferring of the degrees of an applicant, and by otherwise complying with the laws for the re-instatement of members.

Section 2. The Relief Fund shall be raised by levying assessments of amounts not more than sufficient to produce the amount required for the payment of each respective relief assessment; and such assessments shall be levied and collected in the same manner and under the same laws, rules and regulations as ordinary assessments for the beneficiary fund, and all laws of the Order in regard to suspension for non-payment of ordinary assessments or reinstatement of members shall be applicable also to such relief assessments. All Master Workmen degree members in good standing at the date of the levy of such assessments shall be liable for the same. Provided, subordinate lodges may set apart such Relief Fund or assessment from their general fund, and that such assessment shall not exceed the sum of three dollars per member in any one year.

One dollar is the price now charged for beneficiary certificates, and fifty cents for reassignments. The Supreme Master has appointed Dr. William C. Richardson, of St. Louis, Mo., as Supreme Medical Examiner. This was a wise and happy selection. The doctor is affable, and well informed and will make an efficient, faithful officer. The proper guardianship having been received on Wednesday in the loss of Sam A. Pointer, of Thompson's Station, a draft was yesterday sent to his heirs for $2000. John P. Gentry, of Collierville Lodge is the next loss in regular rotation, and will be paid in a few days. The lodges of Knoxville are speaking of consolidating, and having, instead of three lodges, one good big lodge.

THE MACARONIANS.

A Royal Time Down the River Yesterday.

The good steamer, Mike Davis, with the Chief Macaronian as Commodore, backed out from the wharf yesterday morning at half past eight, with a splendid crowd on board. The weather was very favorable and all were hopeful of a delightful time on water and shore quite removed from the ordinary cares of life. In this they were not disappointed. After steaming down the river about twenty miles the boat rounded in gracefully and threw out a line at "Camp 239." The crowd speedily disembarked and found in the grateful shade of grand old trees that ample preparations had been made for their coming. There was a generous supply of barbecued meats and sheep down to a turn and other country supplies to suit a barbecue or a picnic. In addition to the well seasoned and various substantial which would have tempted even the educated appetites of the famous Icthyophagous club, of New York, there was carried down from the city an abundance of claret, of foaming lager beer, soda water, etc. The Chief Macaronian being a temperance advocate, prohibited the presence of anything stronger.

Including invited guests, there were about one hundred persons present. The officers and the crew of the boat were ordered ashore and told to consider themselves as good as landmen, which they did. The day passed off delightfully; the dinner came on early for all had appetites and enjoyed it beyond the power of language to describe. A deep-seated, internal satisfaction was expressed on every face. There was an abundance for all, and they entered into the spirit and the quiet enjoyment of the occasion. In addition to the food mentioned there was a choice and abundant variety of Italian dishes, including dry macaroni, macaroni soup, and other articles not known to the unlearned reporter.

As the shadows began to lengthen and the sun's rays to come slantingly down through the lower limbs of the great trees, the party assembled again on the boat and it began to stem the broad bosom of the Mississippi. At 8 o'clock the Macaronians and their guests, after passing resolutions of thanks to Captain Randle, the owner of the boat, for its use, and the crew for politeness and prompt attention, came ashore and slowly dispersed to their homes. All expressed themselves as delighted with the events of the day, and will remember the trip and the dinner and its accessories as among the pleasantest events of their lives.

LETTER OF REGRETS.
The following letter from Colonel Henry T. Hulbert was received at Camp 239 during the day by the chief Macaronian in command:

SCANLANS, August 21, 1881.
DEAR SIR:—It was my purpose in response to your kind invitation, conveyed through Major Scanlan, to go up and mingle with the Macaronians to-day at their meeting, but really I am afraid to venture out in the sun, feeling out of sorts—say half sick. Hence I must deny myself this pleasure. The same reason prevents Major Scanlan from attending, but he will go up this evening to the Harp's place and thence on your boat to Memphis.

You need hardly be assured that the pleasure especially anticipated on the occasion was the meeting of yourself and other friends in pleasant and social converse, and incidentally to partake of the delicacies which your mystic brotherhood are wont so temptingly to prepare and generously serve up, with accompanying garnishments. Hoping that in the enjoyments and grateful relaxations of the hour, each and every member of the craft may find rest and relief—now-nerved and braced for the battle of life, and return home to meet the earnest grasp and joyful greeting of friends and the dear ones in waiting. I remain, truly your friend,
HENRY T. HULBERT.

While the Macaronians were on their homeward voyage they sighted the quarantine station, and having two suspicious cases aboard, determined to stop for an overhauling. The steamer brought to off the quarantine vessel, and not finding anybody to inspect their crew, they went on a hunt for the examining board, but didn't succeed in stirring up any. From a very clever young man who seemed to have charge a thorough examination of the premises resulted in finding everything as neat as a new pin. The steamer Katie Hooper, from Arkansas City, doubtless with people on board direct from New Orleans, passed up just ahead, and was not halted for examination. It was ascertained that Dr. Reilly was absent in the city. His quarters at quarantine, however, were in a single pie order.

HOPE DEFERRED.

Unfavorable News From the President.

Vomiting Yesterday, and No Better To-Day.

Unofficial Bulletin—11 a.m.

The President's condition has not materially changed since the morning bulletin. There has been no recurrence of vomiting, and the patient has taken a small quantity of milk porridge and a little koumiss without nausea. It has been rumored that his mind has wandered at intervals, but this reported mental disturbance seems to have been nothing more than a slight incoherence of speech immediately after awakening from sleep, before his senses were fully under control. It has not occurred at any other time, and is perhaps due to the extreme weakness. The swelling of the parotid gland remains about stationary. The feeling at the Executive Mansion this forenoon is one of anxiety, but the general impression seems to be that there is no greater cause for alarm now than there has been for two or three days.

Unofficial Bulletin.

Dr. Bliss reports at 11:40 a.m., that the condition of the patient is slightly better than yesterday. There has been no nausea or vomiting since yesterday afternoon, and the stomach seems to be again resuming its functions. The patient has swallowed and retained without discomfort since morning about twelve ounces of milk porridge and koumiss, and at 7 a.m. an enema of beef extract was administered. Another enema will be given about noon. There has been no change in the appearance of the parotid gland since yesterday, although there has been a further slight subsidence of the inflammation of the surrounding parts. The surgeons hope they have this feature of the case under control, although they cannot yet speak with confidence. The gland may suppurate within the next two or three days notwithstanding the measures which have been taken to reduce the inflammation. In that case the pus will be liberated by an incision just as soon as its existence becomes apparent. This will not necessarily involve great peril, if the patient's strength can be sustained.

The danger most to be apprehended, Dr. Bliss says, is exhaustion, and with this danger they hope to deal successfully, unless the stomach entirely breaks down. Thus far to-day, the indications are that that organ is improving in tone, and that the secretion of phlegm in the throat has so far decreased that it gives the patient no special annoyance, and he is relieved from the necessity of making such efforts to expel as those which brought on vomiting yesterday afternoon. Dr. Bliss says the patient's pulse at 6 o'clock this morning was 98, and at 11 o'clock was 104.

Official Bulletin—12:30 a.m.

The President has continued this morning to retain liquid nourishment taken by the mouth as well as by enema. There has been no recurrence of vomiting and no nausea. The parotid gland swelling is not materially smaller, but continues painless. It has caused for a day or two an annoying accumulation of viscid mucus in the back of the mouth, but this symptom has now much abated. At present his pulse is 104, temperature 98.4, respiration 18.

The Latest.
WASHINGTON, 1 p.m.—The President's doctors seem to feel somewhat encouraged to-day, but he is still in a very critical condition, and this fact is not concealed.

A Large Man Dead.

Huntingdon, Va., Oct. 1.
William Shaver, the largest man in Carroll county, died last Saturday night. One hundred and fifty feet of lumber was used in making his coffin, which was 7 1/2 feet long, 3 1/2 feet deep, and 4 feet wide. Mr. Shaver weighed at the time of his death 495. He was 69 years of age.

Rescued from Death.

William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., says: "In the fall of 1876 I was taken with a violent bleeding of the lungs, followed by a severe cough. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the city hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs. I got a bottle, when to my surprise and gratification I commenced to feel better, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have in the past three years."

"I write this hoping every one afflicted with diseased lungs will be induced to take Dr. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs, and be convinced that consumption can be cured." Sold by druggists.
